Reflection

REST

Rest is where the magic happens. True rest changes us at the cellular level. It is the space in which the body is strengthened and the soul restored. Catch your breath, let down your guard, rest and let God come especially close.

Relieve yourself of the adrenaline rush and the accolades wrought of business so that Jesus can be born anew in you.

The Right Rev. Jennifer Baskerville Burrows is the bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Indianapolis.

response to the ordinary –

“For most of the days are not filled with events that we label “important.” The content and quality of our lives is determined by how we respond to the ordinary, and this depend on whether or not we have taken the time to an inner life. The more pressed we are for time the more essential it is to make recollection a part of our day.”

–Elizabeth O’Connor, Journey Inward, Journey Outward (1968), p. 18

the capacity to look

“The artist is always the contemplative—the one who sees what is there. The uninhibited three-year-old, stopping with enthralled gaze to watch an insect, or some activity in the street, is also a contemplative. If we could recover that lost capacity to look, which we all once had, we might be able to penetrate to the heart of matters.”

–Elizabeth O’Connor, Cry Pain, Cry Hope (1987), p. 140

ABM Project

Our thanks to all who have continued to drop off recyclable containers to our churches. Please continue to do so.

Stamps for ABM

Please cut stamps off envelopes leaving an area 5mm around the stamp if possible. You may bring them to the box at the back of St Philip's.

If you have not collected stamps previously please consider doing so now because over the years ABM has raised much money for ABM's mission work throughout the world.
